RECOMMEND THAT FIRST WARD OF TOWN BE DIVIDED

Commission Reports To Court On Division Of Largest Precinct In Borough.

Recommendations that the first ward here be divided into two voting districts and that the Buick garage, York street, be designated as the polling place for the new district are contained in a report of a commission, appointed by the court to study the petition of first ward voters for a division, filed with Judge D. P. McPherson in court here today.

The commission recommended that that part of the ward on the north side of York and Hanover street and north of the two streets be considered one district and that that part of the ward on the south side of York and Hanover streets and south of the two streets be considered the second district. The polling place for the southern district would be maintained at the engine house.

Ready by November

On the commission were Attorney J. L. Hill, G. R. Thompson and H. B. Bender, residents of the second and third wards. The division of the ward will not be possible before the spring primary, April 24, but will be consummated before the general election in November.

PLANE DAMAGED DURING TAKEOFF

The experimental Berliner monoplane, which was brought to the airport of the Gettysburg Flying service on Saturday, was slightly damaged Sunday afternoon during a takeoff in a cultivated field, where it had been forced down.

The plane was brought to Gettysburg by Pilot Paul Charles who made several flights Sunday. In the afternoon A. C. Pottoroff, Waynesboro aviator, who is part owner and manager of a flying field at the Franklin county town, was granted permission to make a flight in the plane. He was in the air a short time when his motor became heated and went "dead" on him. Picking out a field on the Kelly farm, Potoroff landed and the plane was pushed by a crowd of men to the top of a little knoll where Pilot Charles attempted to take off. He was about ready to leave the ground when the left wheel of his land gear struck a rock, shearing off a bolt.

Pilot Charles sensing the damage to the plane immediately shot off his motor and slid to a stop. The damage was of a minor nature and was repaired within a short time this morning by mechanics at the field.

CONSOLIDATED SCHOOL IS PLAN FOR FRANKLIN

Second Township Falls In Line To Have Central School; To Vote At Primary.

For the purpose of erecting two consolidated school buildings to replace fifteen one-room schools, the Franklin township school board today announced that it will ask the voters in the district to give it authority to float a $60,000 bond issue for the building program at the spring primary.

Franklin township is the second district in the county to come forward with the floating of a bond issue for the erection of a consolidated school, Hamiltonban township having announced ten days ago that it will ask the voters there to authorize a $35,000 bond issue for the same purpose.

Heating Plants Bad

If voters of Franklin township give their approval to the proposed bond issue, the board plans to erect an eight-room modern consolidated school in or near Cashtown and a two-room consolidated school near the present site of Strausbaugh's school on the Narrows road.

The heating plants of every school in the district have been condemned by the state department of education, according to C. A. Cluck, McKnightstown, secretary of the board. Three buildings have been condemned, and ordered torn down, and several have been condemned as to light.

$30,000 For Reports

The Franklin township board estimates that it would cost approximately $30,000 or more to build new buildings and make repairs ordered by the department of public instruction if the consolidated school project falls through. For each one-room school closed by consolidation, the state pays the township $200 a year, and bears half of the expense of transporting pupils to the consolidated school.

Schools which would be affected by the consolidation include Cashtown, Strausbaugh's, Flohr's, Mt. Vernon, Bingaman's, Newman's, Poplar Springs, Scott's, Mummasburg, VanDyke's, Rocky Grove, Sheely's, Hall's, Brady's and Paradise, the latter having been torn down several years ago ago.

Members of the Franklin township school board are George H. Riegle, Charles E. Kuhn, Clark Fetters, Carl W. Kane and Frank Hartman.

German Plane Believed on Ocean Flight

London, March 26.—(AP)—A press dispatch late today reported the arrival of the German trans-Atlantic plane Bremen at the Valdonnel airdrome from Berlin.

Berlin, March 26.—(AP)—Another attempt to conquer the Atlantic from East to West is believed to have gotten under way today with the departure of a Junkers plane from an airdrome here presumably for Valdonnel, Ireland, on the first lap of the hazardous journey.

The plane, carrying Baron Von Huenefeld, Capt. Hermann Koehl and Mechanic Stindler, went up at 8:15 o'clock this morning for what was said to be a trial flight in preparation for a trans-Atlantic attempt.

As the men had not returned at 4 o'clock this afternoon it was assumed that they had made a secret getaway for the North American continent.

Today's "mystery flight" was undertaken with a single motor plane, the Bremen, which was used in an attempted westward flight last summer but which only reached the west coast of Ireland, being forced to turn back by gales after a 22 hour flight.

Neither airport officials nor families of the pilots professed to be aware that a long distance hop was being planned as the men had announced they were going up for a trial flight.

Eighty-one bottles of alleged high-powered beer were seized at the home of Theodore Stape, Steinwehr avenue, Saturday evening in a raid conducted by Sergeant Joseph Merrifield, Detective Charles Wilson and Patrolman George Aughinbaugh. The seized beer was taken to state police headquarters and is being held until an analysis can be made to determine its alcoholic content.

The raid was made, police said, after a number of men and boys were seen coming from the home slightly intoxicated. Dr. Henry Stewart, bacteriologist at the Warner hospital, will make an analysis of the brew.

MISS FISCHER IS STAR OF COMEDY

Before a large and appreciative audience, the Owl and Nightingale dramatic club of Gettysburg made "much ado" with Shakespeare's serio-comic play, "Much Ado About Nothing," in the Eddie Plank Memorial gymnasium, Saturday evening. The play was staged in celebration of the dramatic club's fifteenth anniversary.

The Owls and Nightingales spoke the Elizabethan parts with the command of veterans, and played their roles with an ease seldom found among amateurs.

Outstanding in the cast were Miss Marian Fischer, as Beatrice, a headstrong girl and confirmed maid; Luther Snyder, as Benedick, a sworn bachelor; William Aldinger, as Leonato, governor of Messina; William Snyder, as Claudio, a love sick youth; Charles Hall, as Don Pedro, friend of Claudio; Herbert Mahl, as Don Juan, brother of Don Pedro; F. S. Charlton, as Dogberry, a constable, and Leonard Bryant, as Verges, companion of Dogberry.

Captivates Audience

Miss Fischer captivated the audience with the grace and ease with which she handled one of the most difficult parts of the performance, and around her the other players seemed to gravitate as stars around the moon. While Miss Fischer carried off titular honors, the cast was so well-balanced and so steeped in their parts that the show provided an enjoyable evening's entertainment.

The production was by far the most elaborately staged and costumed ever put on at Gettysburg college, and some unusual lighting effects were achieved.

Besides those already mentioned, others in the cast were: Miss Carolyn Harman, as Hero, daughter of Leonato; John Colestock, as Antonio, brother of Leonato; Miss Elizabeth Trostel, Ursula; Miss Jeanette Horner, Margaret; Ralph Beaver, Balthazar; Gustave Ringwald, Clarence Schulz, Catherine Weste, Ruth Harman, Margaret Smith and Myers Bowers, attendants; James Roche, Borachio; Arthur Lawver, Conrade; Arland Lebo, Friar Laurence; George Hutt, a sexton; Ray Kuhlman, Seacole; Arthur Bolze, Oatcake.

The performance was directed by Dr. Richard A. Arms, assisted by John L. Colestock.

TRIO IN BIG CAR ESCAPE RAIN OF 11 BULLETS IN DASH

Officers' Fire Fails To Halt Machine; Chase Ends In Hanover.

Three men in a large touring car, believed by authorities to be automobile thieves, bootleggers or joy riders, eluded police of York and Gettysburg and led state highway motor patrolmen one of the fastest chases on record here before out-distancing their pursuers in Hanover early this morning.

Reports that the trio had broken into a bank at Lancaster were dissipated later in the day when it became known that no banks in that city had been burglarized.

When the speeding automobile reached the Rock Creek bridge on the Lincoln Highway, east of here, two members of the local substation of the state highway patrol, Patrolmen Royer and Achenbach, fired seven shots after the machine when the driver failed to obey their command to stop.

Fire Eleven Shots

Bulleting into town, the car rushed passed Officer A. V. Weikert, who was stationed at the intersection of York and Hanover street. Officer Weikert fired four shots at the fugitives but the fusillade failed to halt them.

The car cut to the left at Center Square, and rolled out Baltimore street at a speed, estimated to have been between 70 and 80 miles an hour. Patrolmen Royer and Achenbach gave chase on their motorcycles when the car failed to stop at the Rock Creek bridge, and a wild seventeen-mile dash followed.

Lose Trail in Hanover

According to the patrolmen, the driver of the car broke every speed law on the statutes and defied the laws of gravitation and momentum in the wild dash to elude the pursuers. The patrolmen said they could keep the machine in sight on their motorcycles, but were unable to overtake it.

At Center Square in Hanover, the patrolmen lost the trail and abandoned the chase, uncertain whether the fugitives went toward Carlisle, Abbottstown, York or Baltimore.

The car came from beyond Columbia. At the Columbia end of the Pennsylvania railroad bridge over the Susquehanna, the driver failed to stop to purchase a ticket. The ticket agent telephoned to the agent at the Wrightsville end of the bridge and the latter put down the gate to bar the machine.

Crashes Through Gate

As the car approached the Wrightsville end of the bridge, the driver speeded up the machine, and crashed through the barrier. Police in York were then notified, and a motorcycle officer rode to the outskirts of the city to meet the car. The machine was travelling at high speed as it approached York, and did not stop when the officer met it.

The driver of the fugitives' machine disregarded signal lights in York, and drove his car through the safety zone in Continental square. Gettysburg police were then notified to be on the lookout for the machine, but the efforts to stop the car here proved as futile as those in other places through which the speeders passed.

78 DEGREES IS RECORD TEMPERATURE HERE TODAY

It's 78 degrees in the shade and still going up.

With spring only six days on the journey toward summer the thermometer did some high stepping Sunday and today and shirt sleeves were as common as overcoats were a week ago. The only thing lacking so far as the college students and other "men about town" are concerned is that the benches have not as yet been placed in the Centre Square oval for their accommodation.

The mercury started rising Sunday and reached a peak of 74 degrees during the afternoon, Dr. Henry W. Stewart, in charge of the weather observatory here, announced today. This was a total of 24 degrees above normal for this time of the year. The mean temperature for Sunday was 63½ degrees.

Today the mercury got off to a flying start, and at 2 o'clock was touching 78 and gave every indication that it would climb higher before starting to fall.

One indication of spring was the large number of cars on the road Sunday, and a steady stream of automobiles flowed through the central part of town from all four directions.

The girls and women were out in numbers Sunday afternoon and pedestrians had a chance to get a glimpse at the Easter wardrobes, or a part of them at least, although Easter is still two weeks off.

Many of the trees have started to bud and give every indication of coming into bloom early this year, much to the concern of the orchardists, many of whom figure that there are still several more severe frosts before spring's benign countenance will become permanent.

However, tomorrow is likely to be another story, for the weather forecast calls for rain and thunder showers tonight, and colder tomorrow. It may turnout that it is just an April fool joke of the weatherman, a little premature it is true, and Tuesday may be a repetition of today.

MORROW ESCAPES HOLDUP IN MEXICO

United States Ambassador Believed to Have Been Object of Highway Robbery.

Mexico City, March 26.—(AP)—Dwight W. Morrow, United States ambassador to Mexico, received felicitations Sunday because he missed a serious situation Saturday by a fairly close margin when his automobile passed the scene of a wholesale highway robbery less than three hours after the occurrence.

The fact that the ambassador's party was behind schedule led some to believe that the hold-ups were staged with the idea of intercepting Morrow and Genaro Estrada, and thus embarrass abroad the administration of President Calles. Eye witnesses asserted that the bandits shouted "Viva Christo Rey," the slogan of the "Catholic revolution." This circumstance was taken as support of the theory that the affair was planned as a blow at the prestige of the administration.

Others, however, maintained that robbery was the principal motive of the gang.

$259 TOP PRICE FOR COUNTY COW

What is said to have been the largest attendance at a country sale ever held in these parts, gathered on the farm of Oscar D. Gruver, about a mile north of Abbottstown on the East Berlin highway, on Saturday afternoon. It was estimated that there were between 1,200 and 1,500 persons in the crowd. Automobiles lined both sides of the highway and by-roads to the number of 500. The sale had been widely advertised, but it was the balmy spring weather of Saturday that was responsible for the extraordinary attendance.

Mr Gruver, one of the best known farmers in Adams and York county, sold part of his livestock and a few farming implements. The livestock included twenty-six cows, six heifers, nine bulls, one pair of mules and a number of hogs and sheep. The bidding throughout the sale was spirited and good prices were realized. The top price bid for a cow was $259. Others brought $200, while the average price paid was $151. One heifer sold for $120 and a bull for $121. The pair of mules brought $525 and were bid in by George W. Wolf, well known horse dealer of York. Sheep sold for $17 each. The total amount realized in the sale was $6,721.80.

USE RUSES TO RIDE WITH LINDY

Hundreds Use Variety Of Schemes to Take Flight With Lone Eagle.

Washington, March 26.—(AP)—Bolling Field officials were still smiling today when they pondered on some ruses employed by hundreds last week to get into Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's plane during the air derbies he conducted for members of Congress and their families.

At least one congressman, upon reading the newspapers, found to his surprise that he had flown with Lindbergh—surprised because he knew that at the time he was engaged in legislative duties.

Others looked dubiously at the flight lists, seeing thereon "relatives" they had never heard of. One passenger hunted out a newspaperman after he landed and naively explained that "in order to keep the record clear I want you to know that I actually am not Congressman Parks of Arkansas."

Perhaps even more than Colonel Lindbergh, who took all of this well meaning chicanery calmly, Assistant Secretary MacCracken, of the commerce department's aviation division, welcomed his day of rest yesterday. He had charge of the passenger lists and none knows better than he the nature of the pressure brought upon him for the coveted cards. For five days he was busy listening to the pleas of phantom congressmen and sending off small boys, pretty girls and occasionally a smiling old lady.

More than a score of soldiers, aided by a double line of ropes, had their hands full controlling the crowds that surged forward as Lindbergh changed planes. Parents held tiny tots over their heads so they could see him, and school girls smiled their prettiest, beseeching the guards to let them through the lines. Four girls hiked the thirty miles from Baltimore and spent half a day looking for some congressman to "adopt" them.

Today's program will be different. Lindbergh has announced that only congressmen, none of their relatives, would be taken up. He has expanded his invitation, however, to include ambassadors, ministers and heads of legations, each with two members of their families or staffs.

ROB BAKERY IN LEMOYNE

Lemoyne, March 26.—Safe-crackers who worked within a few feet of a busy Lemoyne thoroughfare entered the D. A. Grissinger bakery plant early Sunday, blew a safe in the front office and made away with approximately $400 in cash.

The money deposited in the safe was the receipts of the week-end business. The robbery was committed some time between 12:30 o'clock Saturday night and 10 o'clock Sunday morning. These were the only hours during the week when no one is at the plant, the owner explained.

No one is reported to have heard the explosion which tore open the front of the safe giving access to cash and valuable documents.

"The Power of Good Will"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "Peace on earth, good will among men" (Luke 2:14).

Read: Romans 12:9-21.

MEDITATION: This has been translated: "Peace on earth through men of good will." This is the heart of Christian teaching. Good will is the greatest force in the world. The Will at the heart of the universe is good will and they who practise good will are simply falling in line with the eternal good Will and using this mightiest of forces. St. Paul calls this good will love. It "beareth all things, endureth all things." There is nothing which will overcome and disarm opposition and hostility like the spirit of good will. It will conquer any foe. It will make us sufficient for all the annoyances and irritation that the day can bring. If one doubts the value of good will, let him try it and see for himself what wonders it will accomplish.

PRAYER: O God of all goodness and grace, fill our heart, we beseech Thee, with love toward our fellowmen. Give unto us the spirit of brotherliness that we may have faith and trust in all those, with whom we shall have to do this day, and thus become mighty through our good will. Amen.

FIVE TRAINMEN HURT IN WRECK

Western Maryland Freight Train Collides With Loose Car, Derailing 40 Cars.

Harrisburg, March 26.—(AP)—Five trainmen were injured in a freight wreck Saturday near the Pennsylvania-Maryland border on tracks of the Maryland railroad on the Altenwalde cut-off running between Hagerstown and Harrisburg.

The injured are Edward Mannius, conductor, fractured collar bone and burns; Charles Stump, engineer, feet scalded; George Kahl, fireman, injuries of the nose and back; W. R. Shadden, engineer, and Frank Henninger, brakeman. Shaddon and Henninger escaped serious injuries and were removed to their homes after first aid treatment. The other three remained in the Hagerstown hospital to which they were taken.

All the trainmen resided in Hagerstown and were on a southbound freight train which collided with a freight car on a northbound train which had buckled and careened across the tracks on which the southbound cars were running.

The trainmen escaped more serious injuries by leaping to the ground when they saw the wreck was invitable.

Both locomotives of the southbound train were wrecked and 40 cars were derailed.

LABOR SITUATION REPORTED GRAVE

1,874,000 Persons Reported Unemployed Throughout United States By Davis.

Washington, March 26.—(AP)—Secretary Davis of the labor department reported today to the Senate that unemployment is "serious," although "not so extensive or grave as the estimates which have been generally circulated."

Responding to the resolution of Senator Wagner, Democrat, of New York, asking for a survey of labor, Davis said there were 1,874,000 persons out of work in the United States. He said this number constituted "a very small percentage of those at work."

The shrinkage in employment among wage earners was declared to be 7.43 per cent on the basis of those employed in 1925, as compared with January of this year.

STOCK REPORT

New York, March 25.—(AP)—Stock prices began the week with a resumption of the upward movement with many large blocks changing hands. Stocks were liquidated in the forenoon, a good many of them with losses ranging from 2 to 5 points. Nobody paid much attention to their weakness owing to the enthusiasm among traders created by the gigantic purchasing orders which were poured into the market. General Motors sold at $197½ and U. S. Steel at $151 7-8 with Radio at $155½.

"THE JAZZ SINGER," starring Al Jolson, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel. It is based upon the play by Samson Raphaelson.

SYNOPSIS

Because Jakie, son of Cantor Rabinowitz, prefers jazz to Synagogue music, he leaves home. Ten years elapse. Through Mary Dale, a dancer, Jakie, now Jack Robin, becomes a musical comedy jazz singer. The Cantor, discovering his son's profession, disowns him. Jack's show opens the Eve of Yom Kippur. Dillings, the backer of the show, jealous of Mary's love for Jack, withdraws his money, leaving Lee, the producer, dependent on Jack for success. The Cantor is ill and Yudelson, his friend, begs Jack to sing in the Synagogue that night. Torn between his desires Jack talks to Mary. Then his mother arrives at the theatre.

Finished, he ran off the stage and burst into the dressing room. He looked around wildly. There was no one there. He turned about helplessly, bewildered. A little group of people surged forward—Carter, Mary, Lee, Gene—all pulling at him, shaking his hand, thumping him on the back.

"Marvelous! Simply great"—"You certainly can put over a song, Jack." — "Congratulations, Mr. Robin, you were wonderful!"—"Say, you won't need any press agent after tonight!"

"Get out for the next number!" Lee was pushing the crowd back, scattering them right and left. "That was wonderful, Jack," he turned for a moment to the singer. "Say, you actually cried. Do it that way tonight and you'll be a knock-out sure!" He hurried out the door. "All right, Gene. Ready for the next number," he called.

"Jakie! You come to sing in the Synagogue?"

Jack moved slowly towards a chair and sank into it. He wiped his white gloved hand across his eyes, leaving a streak of light flesh showing grotesquely across the black. He rested his elbows on his knees. His head sank; he buried his face in his cotton gloves.

CHAPTER XVIII

Mrs. Rabinowitz pushed open the door of the apartment and came slowly into the room, followed by Yudelson. Automatically she removed her shawl, folded it and put it away. Her legs barely supported her, but she started wearily towards the Cantor's room. The nurse appeared and held her finger to her lips.

"Sh-h-h!" she cautioned. "The Cantor's asleep. You mustn't go in now. Why, you look terribly pale, Mrs. Rabinowitz." She took the older woman's arm and helped her to a chair. "There, now, sit down for a little while. The doctor left some medicine for you. I'll get it."

"No; I don't want none," Mrs. Rabinowitz obediently sat down, but she shook her head at the word medicine.

The nurse, however, was already stirring up a powder in a glass of water. She brought it over to her patient. "Now, suppose you drink this." She held out the glass, smiling. "It'll make you feel better."

"He wouldn't come home," Mrs. Rabinowitz shook her head. "My Jakie wouldn't come home—"

"Now, now, he'll be home later," the nurse was simply trying to soothe her charge without knowing what she was talking about.

"No—no, he ain't coming, I tell you. He ain't coming."

"It's her son, Jakie. He sings in a theayter. He ain't coming home to sing in the Synagogue tonight," he explained.

"Oh," the nurse responded. "I see. Now, Mrs. Rabonowitz, please drink this. And then the doctor says you must lie down for a little while. After that you must have something to eat. You know you promised the Cantor you'd attend the services, and you must have something nourishing if you're going to fast tonight and tomorrow." She held the glass to her patient's lips.

"Yes, drink, drink," Yudelson urged.

Obediently Mrs. Rabinowitz swallowed the liquid.

"Tell me the true, nurse. The Cantor, is he dying?" Mrs. Rabinowitz caught the nurse's hand and waited patiently for her answer.

"The doctor said," the nurse paused for a moment, "the doctor said that if we keep him very quiet he may pull through. Now suppose you let me help you to your room." She lifted the older woman gently from her chair. "You can have a little sleep, too, and then when the Cantor wakes up I'll call you."

Mrs. Rabinowitz nodded drowsily, the opiate already beginning its work on her weakened system. She allowed herself to be led to her room and made comfortable on the bed.

Yudelson sat down and wrapped himself in thought. Once more he was faced with the proposition of getting someone to sing the "Kol Nidre." A worried frown appeared on his brow. Lipski, Clarence's cousin, was his last resort. He might as well walk over and talk to him, as there seemed no other prospect in view. He felt that he'd almost sing himself before he'd allow Levy to sing. As his thoughts turned to the "shamus" that gentleman knocked, opened the door and walked in.

"So! Mr. Yudelson! You're just the man I was wanting to see," he began, rubbing his hands.

"Nu, Mr. Levy, what could I do for you?" Yudelson queried coldly, knowing well what was on his visitor's mind.

"I want I should get from you official the order I should sing tonight," Levy was enjoying his present position quite thoroughly.

"Oh, no; I couldn't give you yet," Yudelson returned determinedly.

"If you couldn't give me, who could?"

"I could give you, but I couldn't give you yet," Yudelson was stalling for time now.

"What kind answer is this? It's nearly dark and you couldn't give me official the appointment yet. You ain't got nobody else," Levy spoke knowingly.

"I ain't saying I have oder I haven't," Yudelson returned dogmatically. "I told you I couldn't give you yet. In half an hour I'll know."

"In half an hour it will be too late. I got to practice a little bit in advance with the choir, ain't I?"

"In half an hour it'll be too late? For thirty years you waited the Cantor should get sick, you can't wait another half hour!"

"Brother Yudelson, you are the chairman from the Executive Committee, no."

"Brother Levy, I am the chairman from the Executive Committee. Make yourself a tsimmes from it."

"All right! Then you are the chairman from the Executive Committee. So I want I should ask you, who is the shamus of the Orchard Street Synagogue? Am I the shamus oder ain't I the shamus?"

"Brother Levy—" Yudelson's remark was cut short. The two men stopped and stared open mouthed at the door. There, his hand on the knob, stood Jack. He closed the door quietly and entered the room. His face was drawn and pale, but there was an air of determination about him. "Jakie!" Yudelson found his voice at last. "You come to sing?" He turned a belligerent eye on Levy.

"Yes, get me a praying shawl and see if you can find a plush skull cap like the Cantor's only a little smaller."

"A praying shawl and a skull cap! Jakie is going to sing!" Yudelson was reveling in his escape from his worries and his victory over the shamus. "Levy, get a praying shawl and a skull cap, quick!"

"Where could I find—" Levy began bitterly.

"Are you the shamus oder ain't you the shamus? For a shamus it ain't hard to find plenty shawls," he turned sarcastically on Levy.

"All right—all right," Levy moved scornfully towards the door. "He's going to sing! A kid from Broadway! What does he know from School? The committee is making a big mistake—" He retreated, muttering imprecations to himself.

"Jakie, I'm glad you come. I'll tell your mama." He knocked on the door of Mrs. Rabinowitz's room. "Mrs. Rabinowitz! Mrs. Rabinowitz!" he called. "Jakie is here! He's going to sing!"

Jakie was already turning to his father's door when the nurse appeared, disturbed by the sound of voices

Out of the Past

Happenings of Days Gone by as Chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times, the Files Reveal.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

Foreign (Late from Europe).—The sessions of the British Parliament and of the French Chambers were opened. A tory ministry has been organized in England with the Duke of Wellington at the head of it.

The Duke of Wellington having accepted the post of First Lord of the Treasury and Prime Minister has resigned the command of the army.

The British troops were to be withdrawn from Portugal.

The Packet ship, France, which sailed on the 3d for New York carries one of the richest cargoes that has left the port of Havre since the peace. The value of the merchandise with which it is loaded amounts to five millions. Our silks are the principal object of this expedition.

Still Later from England.—Notwithstanding the assurances in the French king's speech that affairs were in such a state in Spain as to justify withdrawing his troops from that country, it is still represented to be in a state of almost complete anarchy.

Arrival of Lord Cochran in England.—The Hampshire Telegraph states that Lord Cochrane arrived in his private schooner, the Unicorn, from Paros (one of the Grecian Isles in the Archipelago) in 28 days. His reason for returning he asserts to be that the Turks have not a single ship of any description on the sea, and therefore the Greeks no longer need his aid. Lord Cochrane thinks that piracy can be effectually suppressed but in two ways, either the active use of well appointed steamboats, or an inducement held out to the Greeks, who engage in this petty but destructive warfare, by a regular and firm government, to obtain a subsistence by honest and industrial exertions. He states that the Egyptians are retiring from the contest in the Morea with all possible celerity.

(Editorial.)—There was no necessity, Mr. Lever, for the allusion you made last week to an incident "at the governor's election in 1823"—the fact of my having been deceived in the result of that election might have been deemed sufficient for argument's sake, without adverting to matters which could not strengthen the argument—and were wholly unnecessary. Such conduct only serves to show an absence of that NICE SENSE OF HONOR, and DELICACY OF FEELING, which ought to be the characteristics of every gentleman.

Union Canal.—The water has been let into this canal, and, we understand, boats have already passed its whole length from Philadelphia to Middletown.

Pennsylvania Canal.—The water was let into this canal on Tuesday, the 18th inst., about 7 miles from Harrisburg. The basin at Harrisburg "was not sufficiently filled on Friday evening to allow the water to pass beyond it." It is expected the canal would be filled this week, to join the Union Canal at Middletown.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Singular Historical Fact.—Sir Walter Raleigh was the first discoverer of the value of the potato as food for man. One day he ordered a lot of dried weeds to be collected and burnt. Among these was a lot of dried potatoes. After the bonfire, these potatoes were picked up, thoroughly roasted. Sir Walter tasted them and pronounced them delicious. By this accident was discovered a species of food which has saved millions of the human race from starving.

On the same day by Rev. Jacob Ziegler, Mr. John Miller, of Gettysburg, to Mrs. Julia Ann White, of Franklin township.

On the 22nd inst., by Rev. J. Ulrich, Mrs. Isaac B. Houser to Miss Sarah L. Hildebrand, all of Petersburg (York Springs).

(Ad.) A Card.—The Summer Session of the New Oxford Collegiate & Medical Institute for 1853 to '54 will open in its various branches on Monday, the 11th of April next, and continue till the 1st of October next.

Prices for tuition as heretofore, viz: $12 in the Collegiate, and $20 in the Medical Department; payment in advance.—(No extra charge whatever).

For pupils sent from a distance, the Principal will, if desired, procure board, washing and mending in respectable houses for $75 per annum, payment quarterly in advance.

Parents and Guardians who wish their sons or wards to receive a thorough education without endangering their physical or moral health are invited to come and examine the Institute personally, since the evidence of our own senses is more to be relied upon than any other.

From Europe.—The Emperor of Austria has recovered from his wound. The attempted assassin was executed at once. A church is to be built on the spot of the attempted murder.

An attempt has been made on the life of King Ferdinand, of Naples. The ball entered his leg and it is thought amputation will be necessary.

It is definitely settled that the Pope will go to Paris to crown Napoleon on the 1st of May.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SOMETHING MUST CARRY US ON

I HONOR anyone who has a religion. I care not what sort it is, just so long as it supports, builds, and makes happy that individual.

The most savage of races have had their religion, and it has meant much to them—the most sacred thing they own.

The Indians expressed something of this religion of theirs in the many signs which have come town to us. The crossed arrows for friendship, the butterfly for beauty, the sun's rays for constancy, the sky band leading to happiness, and many, many others. Out of Nature itself this early man's mind drew inspiration, comfort and solace.

Something must live within us to carry us on.

The world's greatest men have been deeply religious. The more observant one is, the more one delves into the meanings of things, and the more one studies Nature and all its manifestations, the more one is impressed with the eternity of all that is good.

The human heart should daily be tuned so that its harmony is meshed with that of the highest and most beautiful in life and Nature. For, after all, all of religion is a little of everything, combined in one tremendous movement that stirs and warms the heart and makes a man all of which he is capable.

Religion isn't something acquired at a church or in an organization. It is something that springs, like the natural flow of water out of the mountain side, something that has to find an outlet—something that must find us and thus carry us on—and on.

The religious man finds in business a great joy, and in public service an opportunity to radiate himself for the good of many others.

My friends are of all religious faiths. I care not which they have espoused. That religion which makes you happiest, and which gives you the greatest opportunity to make this a happier world is the best religion for you, and all men should respect it.

But we must all have this religion to carry us on, to help us when we fail, and to lead us on when we fear most.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest

THE BRIDE'S PRAYER

"For better or worse," the parson said,
But under her breath, said she,
In that church where she and the man were wed:
"I pray for the worst, 'twill be.

"Let us be held by the yoke of care
And touched by the whip of pain.
Give us a burden which we must share
Or all of my dreams are vain!

"Lord, keep him poor as he is today!
Let him never a rich man be.
For if ever a fortune come his way
He may want to be rid of me."

Little Jack Rabbit

In the last story, you remember, Mrs. Bear was telling the two little rabbits how she had gone into warm winter quarters at the first flurry of snow; how she had slept all winter with her two small cubs that had been born in January, and now that spring had come, and the call of the Bluebird, she had came out of her snow-covered cave to the open day.

"Well, my bunny friends," she added, with a fond look at her two furry children, one brown and the other black, "from now on I shall have my hands full teaching these youngsters the way of the wild. They must learn soon to look out for themselves. Yes, I shall soon teach them to find their own food, keep a sharp lookout for traps set by hunters and learn the secrets of the wild wood." Then off she ambled with her cubs, and after watching them until they were lost to sight in the deep forest, Uncle Lucky turned to his bunny nephew.

"Three more promises of spring," chuckled the old gentleman rabbit. "And we've learned at first hand bear habits, eh, little bunnikins?"

"Yes, Oh, yes," laughed the little rabbit. "What a wonderful world is ours; each one so different and yet all under the same law."

"Well, I never," cried the astonished old bunny man. "You're growing wiser every minute. Wise words for a little rabbit," and then, with a hop, skip and jump, away went Uncle Lucky.

"Well, we've now seen all but one of the 'Seven Sleepers,'" all of a sudden remarked the old gentleman rabbit, pausing a moment to look about him.

"What, what do you mean?" asked the curious little bunny.

"Don't you know the names of the 'Seven Sleepers'?" asked Uncle Lucky, twinkling his pink nose to discover, if possible, a danger scent in the air.

"Of course I don't," answered the little rabbit.

"Well, then, listen to me," said his wise bunny Uncle. "During the cold winter months six little people and one big person go to bed to sleep until spring arrives.

"You don't mean it!" exclaimed the bunny boy.

"Yes, I do," insisted dear Uncle Lucky.

"Who are they?" asked the little rabbit.

"Well, the big person is Mrs. Bear, whom we have just seen," answered the old gentleman rabbit.

"I was just going to say that," cried the bunny boy.

"Then comes Rastus Coon, the little brother of the bear, as he is often called. And Woody Woodchuck and Chippy Chipmunk. Also, Sammy Skunk:—We might run across him any moment."

"You've named only five, so far, for

"Well, give me time to think. The last two are very, very small persons. Yes, very tiny."

"Right you are, and Billy Bat is the other, the only one we've not yet seen," said the old gentleman bunny. "And now you know the names of the 'Seven Sleepers' of the woodland." And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Theatre Manager Killed By Bandits

Philadelphia, March 26.—(AP—Max Harrison, 27, assistant manager of the Cross Keys theatre in West Philadelphia, was shot and killed Friday night, and Martha Yetter, 17, a patron, seriously wounded as they stepped from the theatre by three would-be hold-up men.

The robbers escaped in an automobile, but did not obtain any loot. Harrison was on his way to a bank with the night's receipts of about $700.

Miss Yetter left the theatre with her mother by the same exit as Harrison, after having witnessed the night's performance. Two bullets were fired into body and physicians said she probably was fatally injured.

Coast Guard Planes Aid In Life Saving

Washington.—(AP)—The coast guard is finding its "eyes of the air"—a squadron of five airplanes stationed along the Atlantic coast—valuable in its work of life saving and of chasing rum vessels.

The planes flew thousands of miles last year without an accident and probably viewed half a million miles of sea area, Lieut. Commander Stephen S. Yeandle of the service told a house committee recently. Some day the planes will be used to carry lines to ship-wrecked vessels to rescue people, he declared in telling of experimental efforts being carried on by the aircraft in this work.

Locating bodies of persons lost in wrecks, discovery of derelict vessels and floating obstructions and carrying doctors and medical relief to isolated islands are some of the outstanding duties of the flying coast guardsmen, Commander Yeandle said.

Window In Signboard Displays Furniture

Boston.—(AP)—A signboard has graduated into the showroom class in Boston.

A furniture company took half of an ordinary roadside signboard on Commonwealth avenue, cut a hole in the front, inserted a big plate glass window, built a room in the rear, provided it with electric lights, furnished it completely, and then built a wooden runway from the street to the window for passersby to use in looking over the exhibit.

The whole signboard, room and all, is supported on stilts.
